

Provide peace of mind for your employees with comprehensive identity protection

Your people are at the center of your business' ability to grow and thrive. With identity theft reaching an all-time record high last year impacting 15.4 million victims¹, offering identity protection services to your employees is more important than ever.

Elevate your benefits package with comprehensive identity protection.

Offering these services can help protect your employees and your business, while attracting better talent and separating your company from the competition.

Safeguard Your Employees & Business

Experian offers a robust set of identity protection services to help safeguard your employees, alerting them to suspicious activity related to their personal or credit information. Additionally, when considering employee practices – like password reuse – that can put your data security at risk, providing identity protection for your employees helps mitigate the risk of data breach for your business.

Attract & Retain Talent

Over two-thirds (68 percent) of human resource professions consider identity protection an increasingly important employee benefit to help attract and retain talent.² However, only half currently offer identity protection to their employees. Separate yourself from the competition with a valuable benefit that's in high demand.

Reduce Employee Downtime

Identity theft is a costly and difficult crime to resolve, and can be a major distraction for employees in the workplace. In addition to identity and credit monitoring, this valuable benefit includes full-service identity restoration in the event your employee becomes a victim of identity theft – saving them time and money with the help of a certified restoration specialist.

Explore the options to make this valuable employee benefit the right fit for your people. Contact an Experian representative today!

¹2017 Identity Fraud Study, Javelin Strategy & Research

²2017 Progressive Benefits Study, IdentityForce